

JENNIFER L. BARRY

Global Chair of Latham's Intellectual Property Litigation Practice
Latham & Watkins LLP

Jennifer L. Barry is Global Chair of the Intellectual Property Litigation Practice at Latham & Watkins LLP. She represents clients in all aspects of general commercial litigation with a particular focus on intellectual property. She guides top technology clients through complex IP laws and ever-evolving internet policies, and she manages the global trademark portfolios of market-leading technology brands. She has successfully litigated before numerous federal and state courts as well as the Patent and Trademark Office's Trademark Trial and Appeal Board. Barry leads a team of more than 100 IP litigators worldwide that brings trial-tested experience to matters ranging from cutting-edge pharmaceutical and technology patent disputes to the copyright, trademark and trade secrets cases that reshape industries. The team includes trial lawyers such as Barry who draw on deep technical knowledge, industry insight and experience litigating across venues.